

I don't know what to write anymore. I just don't know what to write. Clearly the world is about to fall apart. I think everybody or at least very many people realize it. There are those that keep themselves busy so as not to think too much about this most frightening situation. There are those that ignore it totally and there are those that are trying to do Teshuva in order to be able hopefully to greet Moshiach. What can I say more? You only have to choose what you want. Those who ignore the writing on the wall so-to-speak, will be in trouble, big trouble because they are not preparing themselves for the inevitable, for the day of destruction of most of the world for the day when the righteous will greet Moshiach. Those that now ignore the warnings will lose their eternity, Chas Vesholom. There also are those that will just plain have to go through many many difficult times to fix their souls that are lacking in Emunah and Bitachon, that are lacking in belief and trust in Hashem. It is a scary thought to get to a point where a Yid does not believe in Hashem, Chas Vesholom, or who becomes officially an Apikores, Chas Veshalom.

Hopefully Be'ezras Hashem all true Yidden will in the end accept the Truth that Hakadosh Boruch Hu is the only Hakol Yachol, and because denying His existence is denying your own existence Chas Vesholom.

Can you please explain that last bit?

It means a person exists only to do Hashem's will, to be His servant and if we deny this then we deny ourselves. We were created only for this and if we deny it and since it's the absolute Truth then we deny the reason for our own existence and that will cause our lives, our eternal lives not to happen Chas Vesholom. That means we will never reach eternity Chas Vesholom!
